

Net Zero for Churt

Churt News in Nature Summer 2024

Published by Churt Environment Working Group

See www.churtzero.org for more news

Starling flock bathtime after flying practice

A good breeding year for swallows

We counted 19 on this tree

Digging for truffles on the Rec at the fete

Aurora Borealis come to Churt

But a tough year for butterflies

Not many of the brightly coloured species yet!

Have I been spotted yet under the birdfeeder?

Smile for the camera children!

This year's weather pattern seems to have suited Britain's 11 native grasshopper species

Pyramidal orchids often seen in Churt in June and July

The Least Carpet Moth - so named because its wings resemble a patterned carpet - not because it eats them!

Photo credits:
Dawn Barrow, Brian Johnson, Myra Johnson,
Please email your nature observations and photos to churtenvironment@gmail.com to publish in future editions.